

Former Sri Lankan cricket captain Marvan Atapattu has made sporting headlines in the cricket world recently. His bold remark for Sri Lanka cricket selectors as Muppets and Jokers creates food for chat among cricket circles. Immediately after these comments Australian cricket pundits predicted that Atapattu would be sent home from Australian tour on the next day. But it wasn't to be. What was the story behind this drama? What stirred up this quiet unassuming character to become aggressive and outspoken?

Farewell Marvellous Marvan

This saga has been a result of a personality clash started in 2004. Atapattu was Sri Lankan cricket captain then and the chief selector during that tenure was also the current head of selectors. Former Sri Lankan fast bowler Asantha de Mel has been appointed as the chief selector of cricket by the sports minister according to Sri Lankan norms. De Mel wanted to bring in young blood to the Sri Lankan team in a bid to focus on future. During that tenure de Mel led selectors picked and sent some upcoming young players for overseas tours with the experienced players. When they return home after the tours without having to play a single game, de Mel criticised the captain in a press brief. During the next Pakistan series in 2004, de Mel axed Tilekeratne Dilshan for a new young player. Captain Atapattu was furious about it not so much of the young policy but the manner in forcing the decision upon him without consultation. This time Atapattu said to the media that de Mel was operating through the press not with the players.

Unfortunately Atapattu had to leave the captaincy and the team for treatment for his injured back for a prolonged time. During that period Mahela Jayawardene was given the helm as an interim leader. Jayawardene excelled as a top leader and luck was with him.

Story behind Muppets and Jokers comment

When Atapattu returned recovered many months later, new emerging players like Upul Tharanga and Chamara Silva cement their places in the team. It was a sorry sight to see former captain Marvan in the bench during the whole of the last cricket world cup. This is a special man who failed six times in Tests scoring ducks initially but compensated for them by scoring six double centuries later. His determination, strong will and commitment has been a rare quality among Sri Lankan cricketers. Above all Marvan possessed most perfect batting techniques. Apparently, during 2005 tour of Australia when Marvan scored a century in Cairns Test, Australian commentator Michael Slater described him as the technically most perfect batsman in the world at the time.

Cricket fans never doubt Marvan's ability, commitment and hard work. Ensuring these qualities still intact within himself, Marvan performed to the best of his ability during the November tour of Australia. He was never slack in the cricket field.

One might think that Marvan made up his mind as this tour was his last for Sri Lanka when he arrives in Australia. Atapattu wanted to retire in high and may not want to let go his enemies without a swipe. He volunteered for a media briefing and calling selectors as muppets led by a joker referring to de Mel was premeditated. This attack might have relieved Marvan's frustration and anger somewhat temporarily. Whether he will regret his decisions later may be another matter. However it is cricket lovers around the world will miss a classy player and a vision of a marvellous cover drive.

Murali.. Again..

Sri Lanka's Muttiah Muralitharan unsuccessfully appeals for the wicket of England's Paul Collingwood, unseemingly, during the first day of the second cricket test match between Sri Lanka and England in Colombo, Sri Lanka. This is the 62nd time Murali has taken five wickets in an innings in Tests. At the SSC alone, the bowler has taken 11 five wicket hauls.
